San Marcos was discovered by Spanish troops pursuing a small band of Indians who had raided the flocks of the San Luis Rey Mission. Bestowed upon this lovely fertile valley they decided to name it Los Vallecitos de San Marcos (Little Valleys of St. Mark). It is here on the golf course, where an Indian Kitchen once used by the Luiseño Indians can still be found.

Twin Oaks Valley has a rich history of early settlers and the homesteads where they tended their crops, beehives and orchards. The trail alongside the golf course follows one of the early horse and buggy routes through this area, which is now home to many new settlers.

This area is named for the "Twin Oaks" tree, which had two trunks growing from the same base. The original tree resided over the upper Twin Oaks Valley for over 200 years.
